WHO ASKED FOR INFORMATION In Regard to His Policy Toward the South General Harrison Says He is Friendly to this Section—Giving Advice.

GREENVILLE, S. C., November 27 .- The Greenville Daily News today prints a letter re-cently received by its editor from General Harrison, and published by his permission. It was written in reply to a letter urging that southern commercial interests would be re-lieved from the obstruction caused by doubts and fears regarding the southern policy of the coming administration if General Harrison would make some general assurances of his purpose te follow a conservative course toward purpose to follow a conservative course toward the south, and is as follows:

INDANAPOLIS, Ind., November 14.—To A. B. Will Hams, Greenville, S. C.—My Dear Sir: Your letter of November 10th has been received. I am not ready to make any public utterances upon any public question. Every day I am solicited by special correspondents of the press to speak upon this subject or that, but I have invariably declined, and to your appeal for some expression upon the question that interests you I most, for the present, make the same answer. I understand that you have yourself been satisfied with the expressions made by me in my public utterances to visiting delegations during the campaign. When the surprise and disappointment which some of your people have some calm thought to the situation, I think they sive some calm thought to the situation, I think they

POLLING THE VOTE.

The Close Vote in Indiana—The Tenuessee Contest.

BATON ROUGE, La., November 27.—The board of canyassers, consisting of the governor, the secretary of state and attorney general, met here this evening to compile the votes cast at the recent election for congressmen. Credentials were issued to all those elected, including H. Dudley Coleman, republican, in the second district, where the vote for congressman was variously returned for H. D. Coleman, Ben C. Elliott, Benj. C. Elliott and B. C. Elliott. The returns showed that if each of these names represented a distinct individual, B. C. Elliott, democrat, was elected by a majority exceeding 1,000 votes, but that if all the Coleman votes were added, and if all the Elliott votes were brought together, Coleman's majority would be 174. The board carefully examined the law on the subject and arrived at the unanimous conclusion that Coleman's name, being written corsubject and arrived at the unanimous conclu-sion that Coleman's name, being written correctly in all its styles, was a sufficient indica-tion of the individual for whom the vote was rectly in all its styles, was a sufficient indication of the individual for whom the vote was desired to be cast. The certificate was, therefore, made out in his favor.

INDIANAPOLIS, November 27.—The official canvass of the presidential vote of Indiana was completed tonight. The total vote for the highest elector on each of the four tickets is 536,449, as follows: Highest republican elector. 253,361; highest democratic, 261,613; prohibition, 9,881; labor, 2,634; republican plurality, 2,348. General Hovey's plurality for governor was 2,200. The total vote for governor was only 139 less than for president. The plurality of the lowest republican elector over the lowest democratic elector is 2,434. The electors on each ticket do not vary over forty votes in their totals.

Nashville, Tenn., November 27.—The state board of canvassers, to whom all returns are certified, failed to agree upon the contest for the certificate to congress from the third district. Governor Taylor indorses the claim to the seat of H. C. Evans, republican. Secretary of State Allison, the other member of the board, declares Bates, democrat, was legally elected. Whether a certificate can be issued to either Bates or Evans, with the board thus equally divided, has not been decided, and will not be determined until further consideration, which has been deferred until next Monday.

Democrats Leaving the Grand Army of the Republic.

Indianapolis, November 27.—About 1,200 democratic veterans, members of the Grand Army of the Republic posts of the state, held in the capitol building last night a secret meeting, as which it was resolved that every democratic member of the Grand Army of the Republic should abandon the order, and all present pledged themselves to withdraw from their posts. Adjutant-General Koontz presided. A name and constitution for the new order proposed by the democratic veterans were adopted. The new order is to be charitable and non-political in character. Another meeting will be held tonight, and on Wednesday evening there will be a public mass meeting in the city hall, when reasons for descring the Grand Army of the Republic will be given and the principles and objects of the new order laid before the public. Adjutant-General Koontz says similar meetings will be held all over the state within the next week. Mr. Koontz says similar meetings that he had letters from men in eight states indicating that the movement is national.

resumed this morning, the jury having been secured yesterday.

The first withess was Frank Chleboun, one ter. He testified at length concerning their experiment with dynamite, and then told the story which has already been published of the conspiracy to hiow up the houses of Judges Grinuell and Gary and Inspector Bonfield. Chleboun admitted, reluctantly, that he was an anarchist, and had drilled with the Lehr Und Wehr Verein in the old days before the Haymarket episode. He also said that he had gone to Capek's house to receive instruction in the art of making dynamite. He paid $2 for the lesson, but did not learn anything. He said Hronek had told him, on a trip to Riverside, that he was the man who threw the bomb at Haymarket. At first Chleboun did not believe this, but after he saw the bombs in Hronek's possession he thought that it was the truth, and a few weeks later he told Attorney Fischer about it. He told no one else prior to this.

THE DAY IN PARLIAMENT. Discussion of the Land Purchase Bill-Passage of the Oaths Bill.

aboard. Schooner Jonathan May, from Savannah for London, November 27.—The discussion of the land purchase bill was resumed in the house of commons tonight. Mr. Balfour proposed a substitute for Mr. Lefevre's proposal that no advance exceeding 3,000 pounds be made for the purchase of a holding in Ireland. The Irish secretary suggested that Mr. Lefevre's proposal be adopted, with the proviso that the land commission have power to declare that a larger advance is expedient; the sum in no case, however, to exceed 5,000 pounds. Mr. Lefevre's proposal, with Mr. Balfour's amendment, was agreed to.

Mr. Lefevre next moved that no advance be given unless the tenant, or his predecessors in Schooner Jonathan May, from Savannah for New York, with lumber, was driven ashore at Sandy Hook last night. She lies high and dry on the beach. It is probable she will go to pieces, as the surf is very high.

THE CONSERVATIVES.

THE SECOND WARD MEETING LAST NIL HT.

ENTHUSIASM AT THE COURTHOUSE. Mr. Glenn, Colonel Buck and Others

-Mr. Walter Brown's Meeting. A large meeting was held in the basement of he courthouse last night in the interest of the conservative ticket.

There were probably three or four hundred people present, notwithstanding the fact that notice of the meeting had been given only a few hours before the people assembled. The best element of the colored population was largely represented, there being fully two hundred and fifty negroes in the meeting.

After some excellent music by Huff's col-ared band Captain Moses Bentley ascended the Platform and called the meeting to order.
On motion Colonel A. E. Buck was unanimously made chairman, and took the chair amid applause. He stated that he was glad to see such a good crowd despite the fact that the meeting had not been thoroughly advertised. "There are." said Colonel Buck, "only two tickets in the field. I have decided convictions as to which ticket should be elected. Prohibition and anti-prohibition have nothing to do with this contest. This is no fight between republicans and democrats. If it was I would not be here. I think it is pretty well un-derstood in this community that I am a republican. "It was the original purpose of the republicans to put a straight ticket in the field. It was thought as there were two tickets in the field the republicans by bringing out a ticket of their own could elect it. But while we were making efforts to get out a straight republican ticket, it was discovered that a considerable number of our voters had aligned themselves with one or the other of the tickets already before the people. The reason for this was found to be the fact that the contest was not between parties but simply a fight themselves with one or the other of the tickets already before the people. The reason for this was found to be the fact that the contest was not between parties but simply a fight in the miterest of Atlanta.

"We were afraid, too, that if we should put a ticket in the field the democrats would call a primary, and, of course, that would have led to the defeat of the republican ticket.

"The speakers on the other side charged that I was a Gienn man before I had made any announcement as to my position in the contest. They jumped before they were spurred. I took no position until the republicans finally decided not to run a ticket. When that action was taken a card was printed to that effect. I then concluded that it was my duty, and the duty of all republicans, to stand by that ticket which represented the true interasts of Atlanta. I refer, of course, to the conservative ticket. [Applause.]

"When the ordinary appoints an administrator he selects a man who can properly administer upon the estate of the deceased to the best interests of the heirs. That same question should be considered in selecting the officials to administer the affairs of our city government. That ticket should be efected which is best qualified to advance the material interests of the city of Atlanta.

"Now,I think that the election of Mr. Glenn, or the conservative ticket, will conserve the interests of Atlanta. [Applause.] Understand me, I have nothing personal against Mr. Gienn's opponent. But when he stated that I was seen at a Glenn meeting before I had announced my position in this contest, he made a great mistake. If he should be elected, he is liable to make other mistakes.

"The city of Atlanta spends about one million dollars a year. We want a good man to supervise that big expenditure. Now, of these two gentlemen running for mayor, which one would you select as best capacitated to perform that great public duty. [Cries of Glenn! people, and there are others who pretend to misunderstand it.

"You all remember how the conservative ticket was brought out. But it don't make much difference how a ticket is brought out.

"This city has been torn to pieces by an unfortunate division. I don't lay the blame for that division on anybody. It was rumored all over the state that the prohibitionists and antiprohibitionists in Atlanta were so widely estranged that they would not trade with each other. One gentleman who intended to put a plant in Atlanta decided not to do it because of the division among the people. He did not want to settle in a town where the people were divided. Reports, in some respects exaggerated, had gone out to the injury of the city. The merchants, the manufacturers, in fact all classes, knew this. It was regarded as a great evil.

"What was the remedy for this bad state of affairs? The people took steps to bring about harmony, in order that all might once again pull together in the interest of the city. It was thought necessary to bring out a ticket that all classes could harmonize on and support.

"Meetings, as you know, were called in every

"They oppointed a committee, composed of our best citizens, and that committee brought out the conservative ticket. It is not a partisan ticket. Anti-prohibitionists were put on it with the distinct understanding that the vexed question would be dropped, and that all the ticket, if elected, would work for the interest of Atlanta.

"The ticket was put out. Leading prohibitionists and leading anti-prohibitionists agreed to rally to its support.

"Messrs. John B. Goodwin and Adolph Brandt, prominent antis, thought at first that some unfair advantage had been taken in putting out the conservative ticket. A meeting of the anti-prohibitionists was called, the committee of seventy was appointed and they brought out a ticket with Mr. Brown for mayor.

"These gentlemen reserved the right to withdraw that ticket if they discovered that the conservative tickef was not an enemy in disguise. A committee of five, of which Messrs. After a searching investigation they became satisfied that the conservative ticket was running in the best interest of all classes, and not in the interest. They so reported to the committee of seventy. The report was adopted by the committee of soventy and that ticket which it had put out was withdrawn.

"I was a member of the committee of seventy." said Mr. John George, rising in the audience, "and I want to say that that report was not the reason for the withdrawal of the ticket. The conservative ticket had nothing to do with it. There were other reasons."

"Well," continued Mr. Glenn, "at any rate that the opposition had charged that the conservative ticket had nothing the conservative ticket and nothing the conservative ticket and nothing the conservative ticket and nothing the conservative ticket as required to the committee of seventy. Said that the people would throw dynamite in the dark, if they had a charge."

Mayor Cooper was loudly called for. He said that the opposition of the trept was a member of the committee of seventy. Said that the was for the conservative ticket which it had put out was withdrawn."

Smith Eastey made a statement. He said that the conservative ticket had nothing the conservative ticket and nothing the conservative ticket which it had put out was withdrawn.

drawal of that ticket. I mean to say that the committee of seventy withdrew the organized ticket—thus disbanding organized opposition to the conservative ticket. Of course, after that, men could run as individuals, and men have the right to vote for them as individuals. But that does not alter the fact that the committee of seventy withdrew all organized opposition to the conservative ticket. Neither the prohis, nor the cantis, nor the republicans, nor the democrats, have put out organized opposition to the conservative ticket.

"The reason is that the citizens of Atlanta are satisfied with the conservative ticket and intend to elect it, [Applause.] and my friend George, over there, will vote for it. [Great applause.]

"Another thing—Mr. John B. Goodwin, and intend to elect it, [Applause.] and my friend George, over there, will vote for it. [Great applause.]

"Another thing—Mr. John B. Goodwin, and Mr. Adolph Brandt are going to vote for me for mayor. As I said on a previous oceasion, you cannot satisfy everybody unless there is room enough on the ticket for everybody to be put on it. [Laughter and applause.]

C. The conservative ticket has some opposition, but what kind of opposition is it? It comes simply from gentlemen who want office. I don't deny their right to run, or their right to serve if the people elect them, and I am satisfied they are making every effort to be elected.

"But the point remains that the conservative ticket has no organized opposition.

"The conservative ticket is not pledged to anybody or anything—but the fact that it is conservative is a guarantee that nobody will be hurt by its election. Our platform covers every interest in Atlanta—our platform is Atlanta. Do you know what that means? It means that the conservative ticket, if elected, will represent and protect all of the interest of all the classes among 75,000 people, and if we can reunite the people of this great city and have peace we will have a population of 100,000 in a few years.

"The election of the conservative ticket means something more. It means that the interest of the humblest as well as the richest citizen will be protected. The 1ch man has money and can protect himself. It means honest enforcement of the law to protect the poor man. [Great applause.]

"But they call it the Peachtree ticket. Messrs. Kobbins, McLendon, Meador, Kontz, Hirsch and Middlebrooks do not live on Peachtree, do they? That is merely an appeal to prejudice. It will protect the interest of Peachtree and all the other streets. While the good people are trying to raise a very dangerous issue by the arraying of class againt class—more dangerous by far than any issue which can be raised.

class againt class—more dangerous by far than any issue which can be raised.

"If they get in what will they do about the income of the city? Will camp-followers and hangers-on be fed at the public crip? That income ought to be properly expended and men capable of the work should be elected. They talk about repeaing taxes. Well, if it were right and proper, I would like to repeal all taxes. But he would be an idiot who would assume to know just what to do in this regard, until the necessities of the city shall be known. I am in favor of collecting enough taxes to answer the purposes of the city government, properly administered—no more. [Great applause.]

"Take Atlanta. We must have streets to walk on. We want schools. And I want to say right here that she has the finest system of public schools in the south. [Applause.] Do you know that they can be improved, and that improper interference would certainly hurt them, and neight result in abolishing the system? This is the most important interest in Atlanta. It should be carefully looked after. It is your duty to put men there to build up schools and foster them. We need more schools.

"The question is not a party question. It is a question as to the vital interests of Atlanta. If you weigh that question properly, you must conclude that the interests of our city can be best subserved by the election of Mr. Glenn." [Applause.]

Colonel Buck then introduced Mr. John T. Glenn.

Glenn.

"I believe there is one millionaire, on the coinservative ticket. Now there is not a man in this audience who would not like to be a millionaire. [Demonstrations of approval.]

Then why abuse Mr. Hugh Inman? Is it simply because he got there and you didn't? Mr. Inman came to Atlanta after the war from Tennessee. He tried to get a place at $25 a month, but couldn't do it. He went to New York, where there was plenty of money. He went to work and made $300,000. He didn't settle there, though. He came back to Atlanta and put his money in circulation right here by building factories and houses. The factory employs 500 people. The Kimball house burned down. You can't have a town without a hotel. It was his money which finished the Kimbal house. Instead of abusing him, you ought to wish that Atlanta had 1,000 men like him. Several more mil-

a town without a hotel. It was his money which finished the Kimbal house. Instead of abusing him, you cought to wish that Atlanta had 1,000 men like him. Several more millionaires like that in Atlanta would soon give us a city of 400,000 people. If we had $100,000,000 added to Atlanta, people would flock here from all over the state. All you have to do is to start a dollar, and overybody will take after it. [Laughter.]

"Our city was burned. We pulled together and rebuilt her. Where is that old spirit which once made Atlanta the pride and boost of every man in her liraits? Is that spirit gone forever? I trust not. I believe that the best people within her borders, both black and white, are beginning to feel that old spirit once again. Some people seem inclined to keep up the disturbance—not, however, for the sake of Atlanta but for the sake of office.

"There is not alman on the conservative ticket who sought the nomination—not one. Mr. Inman was asleep in his home when the nomination was made, and three anti-prohibition gentlemen went to his house, waked him and begged him to accept it.

"It is an historical fact that the conservative ticket is the only ticket ever nominated in Atlanta without a single man on it who did not seek the nomination.

"I believe the bulk of the people, both white and black, are for the conservative ticket, and that means its triumphant election."

Jackson McHenry was called for and took the stand.

Jackson McHenry was called for and took the stand.

He did not like to vote for democrats, but under all the c'rcumstances, the conservative ticket was the best thing in sight. He would support it because he wanted to go on record as voting with the best people in Atlanta. Talk about free school books. We don't need'em until we get more school houses. Give us a showing to educate our people and we'll voteright. He had attended a Brown meeting. It was the hardest crowd he had ever seen. Thought of supporting Brown once, but when he saw that crowd, he abandoned the idea.

He advised the colored people to vote for the conservative ticket, because it is the best in the field. It will be elected if the good people will turn out and work.

Captain Bentley was called on and made-a brief speech.

Captain Bentley was called on and made a brief speech.

He made the point that the gentlemen living on Peachtree beyond the city limits paid a double price for the city water which they use—thirty-four cents per thousand. Mr. Brown and his ticket were in favor of cutting off that water. If you vote for him you vote to cut off city water used at Clarke university, beyond the city limits. Will you do it? [Cries of "No!"] Then vote for Glenn and the conservative ticket. [Applasse.]

"When Colonel Glenn was solicitor-general I was tried for my life. He did his best to convict me. I think more the less of him for doing it. I think more of him, as all good men should do, because he did his duty like a man.

"The Peachtree ticket, indeed! Why. Mr. Brown lives on a street which has a dummy line, one of the finest streets in the city, and yet we don't attack Pryor street. It would be wrong to do so. It would be arraying class

An Out-Door Meeting in the Fifth Ward-

The Speakers Present.

The wind oscillated merrily through Walter Brown's ambresial locks as he stepped upon a store box which served as the rostrum at a fifth ward political meeting last night. It was an out-of-door meeting at the corner of Marietta and Walton streets, a place where the wind had a perfect right to oscillate.

Mr. A. B. Burke was the first speaker. He was followed by Mr. H. M. Beutell, candidate for alderman on the people's ticket, and by Mr. D. H. Kent, who will be remembered as a somewhat prominent figure in the last wetor-dry campaign.

Mr. Bishop, then introduced Mr. Walt r. Brown as the bright particular star of the evening. Mr. Brown was cheered as he allowed the chairman to pull him upon the store box, and the cheering increased when he said he was going to cut his speech short. He won the hearts of his hearers by that, for they were cold.

"This weather reminds me of the day the conservative ticket was gotten up," he began.

"This is freezing weather, and that ticket was made up by freezing out the people." He spoke of the correspondence with Mr. Glenn upon the matter of a joint discussion, and suggested that Dickens must have had Mr. Glenn in his mind's eye when he wrote of the artful dedger.

But the thief was not hit.

Mrs. Conley resides near the limits of West End, and is often at home alone; but this in no way disturbs her mind. One night last week her son, who is a mail agent on the Western and Atlantic road, was at home, and about 2 o'clock was aroused from his sleep by a noise in the back yard. Mr. Conley, with a pistol in hand, made an investigation and found a negro trying to open the chicken coop. He approached the darkey and when within a few feet remarked:

Invitations were received today by the party from the cities of Atlanta and Charleston, and a delegation from Columbus waited on the Terminal party in person. In reply to the mayor of Charleston, President Inman said: "Our purpose is to contribute in every possible way in our power to the development of the south."

The luncheon served to the party at the exposition dining hall today, was a very nice affair and was much enjoyed. President Tobin, of the exposition company, Inpoposed the health of President Inman, which was drank standing by the company. In acknowledging the toast Mr. Inman said he was surprised at the magnitude of Augusta's exposition, which was one of the finest he ever saw, and expressed his gratification at the marked advancement in the city of Augusta since he spent several months here eight years ago. Tonight Messrs. Inman, Calhoun and Alexander were dined by President Phinizy, and the remainder of the party were entertailed at the Commercial club. They left on a special car at 11:30 p. m. for Savannah, all declaring themselves greatly pleased at their day in Augusta.

Mr. E. W. Barrett leaves tomorrow morntrain for Savannah, whence they will go to Macon, Columbus and Atlanta. Invitations

Mr. E. W. Barrett leaves tomorrow morning for Washington City to represent The Constitutions during the session of congress.

Trains from Carolina were crowded to overflowing tonight. Crowds have already begun to arrive for Thursday, and Mr. Grady will address the largest crowd on Thanksgiving Day he ever saw assembled in Georgia.

Columbus .- Another glorious day and a big Columbus.—Another glorious day and a big crowd at the exposition yesterday. Those in a position to know say it was the largest yet present. At 11 o'clock J. H. Brigham, grand master of the national grange, delivered an address to the farmers. He is an eloquent and foreible speaker, and his address was full of wise counsel. He was frequently applauded by the crowd, and at the close Mr. H. Hawkins, of Barbour county, was called for, who also made a rattling good speech. The farmers are here in large numbers, and took great interest in the agricultural exhibits, from which they seem to draw new inspiration. The feature of they seem to draw new inspiration. The judges are engaged in examining the exhibition of the contest will be considered in the exhibition of the ex the exhibits and awards will be made from day to day. The exposition has already crossed the line which marks its financial success, and the management is sparing to expense to supplement the magnificent exhibits in the main building with outdoors attractions for the announcent of the visitors. Captain Adams during the course of a yea handled from $40,000 to $60,000 of the order, and it is said there is as much as $10,000 in his hand now. In answer to The Constitution's representative, the supreme commander said he had the fullest confince in Captain Adams, and was desirous of doing all in his power for him, and that he would be continued as the supremf treasurer, if the American Surety company, of New York, would continue on his Lond. It is understood that a telegram was received yesterday from the company, saying that it could no longer continue on Captain Adams's bond. Captain Adams may try to form some new and acceptable bond. Mr. Charles V. Weston, of New York, the general agent of the company, is now in Macon, on business appertaining to Captain Adams's bond. Yesterday morning he changed a switch near the depot in this city and made a switching engine and tender leave the track The tender was damaged, but the engine was unin jured. Quite a number of crossites were badly broken. Ike Reid, colored, who was on the engine saw the negro stoop down and change the swite and then run. The switch was unlocked at the time. The police are on the watch for him, and caught the railway officials will punish him to the file extent of the law.

Newnan.-Last Friday a man hired a doubleteam from W. F. Freeman, of Cedartown, for the purpose of going into the country to buy oxen to haul timber to his saw mill, which be alleged he owned in that vicinity. He had Mr. Freeman to furnish a driver also, a negro boy about fifteen years of age. He says also, a negro boy about inteen years or age. He says the mill man had no baggage or money, and that he made him drive him south through? Polk, Haralson, Carroll and Coweta counties, beating their way with the oxen racket, promising to pay his bills on his return. He even beat his ferry bill across the Chattahoochee, telling the old man, who put him across, that he would have sayers head of even to go eye, with on his return. several head of oxen to go over with on his return. When near the river, in the edge of Coweta, he broke down the buggy and had to leave it there for repairs. He said that when he returned he would pay for his night's lodging and repairing the vehi-cle, which was about three dollars. He also bor-rowed two saddles from the farmer for him and the boy to ride on, claiming that he was in a hurry to get on. They did not pass through Newman, but went around the town, and stayed all night with a negro on Mr. Ed Wilkinson's farm, five miles east of town, he and the negro boy steeping in the same bed. The boy says he never saw him have any money, and that he seemed in a big hurry to get south Monday morning he told the boy to saddle up th horses while he went to the well in the rear of th house, and that is the last he saw of him. Yester house, and that is the last he saw of him. Yester-day afternoon he came to Newman and related his story to Mr. Wilson, one of our liverymen, who telegraphed to Mr. Freeman about the matter. He replied by wire, requesting that he send his boy and horses home, and furnish him with money to pay his expenses, which Mr. Wilson did. The man told the boy his name was Powell, but that may be one of many aliases. He was seen yesterday twenty miles south of here, hitting the grit at a lively rate of speed.

Augusta .- Dr. George Sims, a prominent young Ga, was found this afternoon in the waiting room of the Union depot almost in a dying condition. He was perfectly unconscious and could not be aroused. His pockets were searched and a hypodermic ige, partly filled with white liquid, was found syringe, partly filled with white liquid, where were administered, but up to the present hour he has not regained consciousness, thought Dr. Tinsley, the physician in charge, is confident of his recover Dr. Sims is well known to Dr. Tinsley, and was at the hospital this morning when he horrowed of Dr. Tinsley the hypodermic syring found on his person. Dr. Tinsley is of the opinion that he injected a solution of morphine and cocoaine in his arm, for the purpose of alleviating some bodily pain. He does not think the drugs were used with a suicidal intent. Dr. Sims is a graduate of the medical collecin this city, and is highly connected. His people are in confortable circum-tances and no reason can be ascribed for an effort on his part to kill himself.

Albany .- A meeting of the Georgia Chautauqua Attany.—A meeting of the Georgia Chautauqua assembly was held at the courthouse here last night. The meeting was called to order by the president, Colonel Nelson Tift, and the following board of trustees elected: Colonel N. Tift, H. M. Meintosh, John A. Davis, R. Hobbs, C. Wessolowsky, P. L. Hisman, L. E. Welch, A. W. Muse, S. R. Weston, J. T. Steele, J. Lorch, Y. G. Rust, T. U. Woolfolk, A. W. Cosby, T. M. Carter: A five days' session will be held here in March. reld here in March.
Primus Jones, the first-bale man of Baker county was in the city today on route to Atlanta. He says:

"My cotton crop was off this year, though I made an average of twenty-four bales to the mule. I expected to make thirty bales to the mule, but seasons wer against me. I made a splendid corn crop, however fully three hundred bushels to the plow."

Marshallville .- Sunday night about 10 o'clock the ginhouse of Mr. J. E. Haslaur, five miles from here, was burned down, containing five bales of cotton and cotton seed from seventy-five bales. Mr. J. B. Jones had the place rented and the loss will be onite severe to him. It is thought, of course, the work of an incendiary.

Mr. S. H. Rumph brought in yesterday some speci-nens of Chinese quince from his Willow Lake nursery, which was a wonder to all who saw them. One of the largest weighed four pounds and one ounce and measured eighteen inches in circumference and twenty-one in circumference lengthwise. Mr. Rumph has shipped this fruit to New York and readily netted $2.50 per bushel. He considers this a most profitable fruit for shipping to northern markets. The trees are thrifty and grow to be large cruamental snade trees.

SENATOR COLQUITT

DELIVERS AN ADDRESS TO THE GEORGIA LEGISLATURE.

The Issues of the Day-The Tariff Question and the Position of the Democratic Party Lessons of the Defeat.

Senator Colquitt delivered an address to the egislature yesterday.
Immediately after the adjournment of the house at 12 o'clock Speaker Clay announced that on the day before a resolution was passed tendering the use of the house to Senator Colquit to address the general assembly, and in pursuance of that resolution he had the pleasure to introduce the senator, who, he said, would address the assembly on the issues of the day.

Senator Colquit said:
Gentlemen of the General Assembly: I have no intention to occupy the brief interval in your legislative is one by mak ng any address. That is a very formal declaration and gives rise to the anticipation that there will be an elaborate discussion of political and general themes connected with the principles and policy of our government. My only purpose is, in a few brief weris, to express my homest and sincere thanks, I shoutd be devoid of all sensibility and of all just feeling if I did not seize the opportunity to make known to you, my friends, how deeply I am affected by the testimony which you have given me of your esteem and confidence. You have by your entire the properties of the prope antelection of the republican candidate for the presidency of the United States, there is nothing more ominous to me than the fact that is manifested that money and the accumulated wealth of fraudy inthonocypsy have throuted this country until it is now it synctim. By condescension, by promises, by concilint in. I might have had the good will of these powerful interests, but, my friends, I had rather be the y.ctim than the instrument of their oppression. [Applause.] But we are told—and now patry is the thought—that because of the defeat of our chosen standard bearer we should abandon our flag, we should be serred to principles, we should compromise with our councetions, we should adopt the principles and the policy of our adversaries. Only a trimmer or a traitor will abandon a cause because it has been temporarily defeated. [Applause.] That is not the spirit of the denoceary of this country. Like the children of old, time and again it has passed through the flery furnace with its vestments unacorched and unternished; it has gone in the midst of flery trials and safely passed through.

My friends, is our fidelity so weak and so fatninearted that it will not bear a temporary strife or defeat. Do our convictions hang so loosely about us that, because the dark clouds arise on the horizon and there is at times thander and lightning, that therefore we are to abandon it then? Is that the spirit of Georgians? Is it the spirit of the old confederate time that has been handed down, and which you have inherited from fathers, the patriots that were willing to spend their life and their blood for conviction and principle? Shall we sum away from the enemy because there are nextly in confirming him, and shall we beg for quarter and surrender without terms, unconditionally? And yet I have heard it whispered since the meeting of this general assembly, and inasmuch as our standard-barer and selected chief was not honored by being chosen president of the United States by the people of these could have been betayed, his policy in

The higher purpose is that we should pledge our mattar faith that we will stand by carried to he are and and elbour clebour, as we did in the fery pest, until the prin types we have professed shall have been carried to he nor and triumph. [Applause.] For one shall not desert them, I shall not prove recreant the declarations that I have made, to the declaration that have been made by the coverwhelming vots the state of Georgia, which have been made by the general assembly. I shall stand by this declaration that have been made by the general assembly. I shall stand by this declaration that fance of the senate or on. It hustings in my own state. One word more. It is painful for me to speak myself. Before your vote was cast I faid beiore you personal pretensions of mina. I should have been induced by a feeling of pride or of ambition to have appear before you that you might sauge the stand of my shility. I did not feel that was necessary. My record is known, one to be known, by all the people of Georgi Through two wars, one a foreign war and the off my shility. I did not feel that was necessary in the states, giving my youth a manhood to the first and my middle age to the latt during a period of a session of the congress of t United States when II was jurst eligible to the seduring convention and state legislature of which have formed a part, during the period of the gubernatorial term of six years, and nearly six years in the United States when II was jurst eligible to the seduring convention and state legislature of which have formed a part, during the period of the ladder of fame—up the family of the middle of the ladder of fame—up the family of the middle of the ladder of fame—up the family of t assurance of it in the declaration that has been made in the resolution which the talented member from Bibb. county introduced here a short time ago, when the general assembly by unanimous vote declared that our latch is still dram and abiding in the principles of the democratic party. Here stands the flag of our standard and whether it is covered with smoke or cloud or storm let us follow it. In my judgment and honest conviction four years will not pass away before we shall see it raised upon ramparts that have been rescued from the enemy and the shouts of the people, made happy and buoyant by the resurrection of the truth, will be heard resounding from the lakes till it mingles with the doxology of old ocean on the west. Applause, But, as I said to you, I am not here to discuss principles or politics. I have been betrayed into a little dissertation beyond what I intended, But, my fittends, while my purpose only was to selso this odcastan to any how I exteen the expression of your confidence, at the same time, may we not improve the occasion for a higher and nobler purpose. One word more. It is painful for me to speak of myseif. Before your vote was cast haid before you no personal pretensions of mine. I should have been abshed should I have been induced by any feeling of pride or of ambition to have appeared before you that you might gauge the shandard of my ability. I did not feel that it was necessary, My record is known, ought to be known, by all the people of Georgia. Through two wars one a foreign war and the other a war between the states, giving my youth and manhood to the first and my middle age to the latter, during a period of a session of the congress of the United States when if was jurst eligible to the seat, during convention and state legislature of which have formed a part, during the period of that gubernalorial term of six years, and of nearly six years in the United States senate—I did not feel that it was necessary that I should stand up before any body of Georgians to tell them what I had done, how I felt and what I proposed to do. [Applause.] It is enough for me to feel, as I feel, that as I was born on the soil of Georgia, and as the soil that holds the dearest remains of ancestors that have gone before me, who in there day were honored and led up step by step from poverty and hard conditions to the topmost round of the ladder of fame—up in this soil where have been born my own children. It is enough of essurance to the people who know me to believe that what my past held forement with dearest affect on is the state of Georgia and the people who reside within her jurished forement with dearest affect on is the state of Georgia and the people who reside within her jurished forement with dearest affect on is the state of Georgia and the people who reside within her jurished forement with dearest affect on is the state of Georgia and the people who reside within her jurished to my late the state of the ladder of fame—up in this soil where have l

Madame Janauschek.

Tonight this great artist will appear in her personation of "Meg Merrilles," the strange heroine of Sic Walter Scott's "Guy Mannering," and the opera house will be filled with the clite and refinement of Atlanta. Madame Janauscheek has reverbeen greater in any of her roles than in this one. The character of Meg Merrilles is one calling for an artist thoroughly schooled and educated in the most difficult and erduous lines of professional labor and gifted with the genius peculiarly adapted to the interpretation of complex characters, being thus qualified in the higher ranks of dramatic art, Madame Janauscheek is eminently fitted to wear the mantle of the late Charlotte Cushman. She has a voice that thrills and electrifies, and by its pleading tones of anguish, she wins from the strongest heart emotion and sympathy. She holds her audience spell bound by a more than wonderful magnetism and power of eloquence. After a long career, she is still the true representative of the heroic drama, still the great artists whose methors are models. She is an actress who combines in her own proper person an infinite variety of dramatic qualities. She has a power and emotional force greater than Ristori, a nervous and fiery intention equal to Rachel, and a skill for elaboration and finish only equaled by Bernhard.

Leg diminished one third in Size. Condition Hopeless. Cured by the Cuticura Remedies. 6kin entirely gone. Flesh a mass of disease

For three years I was almost crippled with an awful sore leg from my knee down to my ankle; the skin was entirely gone, and the flesh was one mass of disease. Some physicians pronounced it incurable. It had diminished about one-third the size of the other, and I was in a hopeless condition. After trying all kinds of re-medies and spending hundreds of dollars, from which I got no relief whatever, I was persuaded to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and the result was as follows: After three days I noticed a decided change for the better, and at the end of two months I was completely cured. My flesh was purified, and the bone (which had been exposed for over a year) got sound. The flesh began to grow, and today, and for nearly two years past, my leg is as well as ever it was, sound in every respect, and not a sign of the disease to be seen. not a sign of the disease to be seen. Terrible Suffering from Skin Diseases. I have been a terrible sufferer for years from diseases of the skin and blood, and have been obliged to shun public places by reason of my disfiguring humors. Have had the best of physicians and spent hundreds of dollars, but got no relief until I used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, which have cured me, and left my skin as ciear and my blood as pure as a child's.

The Macon Telegraph thus ended a very culogious notice:

"The company was strong throughout—by odds the best Macon has seen this season. We cannot specify where so many parts were so well performed, but the "Pandy Dimnont" of Mr. Chaplin was certainly delightful. We sincerely wish that more such companies would appear on our boards. They come now and then, and perhaps are all the more pleasing because of the sort of acting we endure while walling for them. We wish Madame Janauscheck would return to Macon this season and give her matchless "Lazzie Evans.

ATLANTA, GA., NOVEMBER 28, 1888

The Pinching of the Shoe. We print elsewhere, as a matter of con temporaneous interest, an editorial article from the New York Sun, headed "Where the Shoe Pinches Most."

The purpose of the Sun's article is to place the responsibility for democratic defeat on some of the southern democratic leaders, who are supposed to have wrapped their free-trade ideas in the flannels of tariff reform; and it goes on to argue that the south was more vitally interested in the continuance of democratic supremacy than all the rest of the country.

Well, THE CONSTITUTION and some other democratic papers in the south, together with a number of prominent citizens, recognized this fact months ago, and we made no bones of blabbing it right out in meeting. We warned democrats that the time had not yet come to move for even reasonable and judicious tariff reform, since a republican senate stood in the way. We showed that no party could inaugurate and carry out any reform-much less so delicate a thing as tariff reform-unless it had complete control of the government.

The position of THE CONSTITUTION, previous to the St. Louis convention, was a part of the duty it owed to the party and the south. When the party spoke in the convention, it became the further duty of THE Constitution to shelve its doubt and fears and to work for the success of the party. Such was our appreciation of the importance of democratic success to the south, that we shelved our convictions in regard to the pro priety of forcing the tariff issue.

Democratic victory was the paramount Issue with THE CONSTITUTION, and it believes now, as it has always believed, that democratic supremacy is of vastly more moment to the south than any political or economic issue that could possibly arise We were prepared to support the democratic party on any platform that could be devised, solely because it is to the interest of the people of this section that the democratic party should have control of the govern-

The Sun is right when it says that the shoe pinches here, and the pinching may become more painful when the republicans, as they hope to do, revive their old time policy of pursuing the south with sectional hate and biterness; but neither this article nor the Sun's article will have any effect on the situation. The "I-told-you-so" business has neither wisdom nor sympathy be hind it, and THE CONSTITUTION doesn't propose to indulge in it. It takes the shape of neither remedy nor consolation.

We are confronted by a situation that is serious in nature and aspect. What is to be the outcome? It is such a situation as will necessarily draw the south more closely together, and this solidity may be the remedy. At any rate it is the best we can do. Our only hope is to cling together and prepare to make another effort to secure democratic supremacy four years from now.

Reversing a Napoleonic Precedent. The latest sensation in Paris is the al ered determination of General Boulanger's wife to obtain a divorce.

It is more than likely that this is only half of the story, and when the facts come out the matter may appear in an altogether

Boulanger, as all the world knows, desires to figure in the role of a Napoleon Now, it is true that Napoleon was divorced, but he obtained the divorce. He thrust his wife aside instead of being cast off by her.

For Boulanger's wife to secure a divorce would be reversing the Napoleonic precedent, and it would cause the disgraced husband to be laughed at. One queer feature about the business is the statement that one of the richest widows in France is willing to marry the general. Possibly this is the true inwerdness of the whole affair. In order to carry out his ambitious schemes the new Napoleon needs money. He finds a wealthy woman who is willing to marry him, and persuades his wife to sue for a divorce so that he may be free to marry a for

This may be the programme. Strange things have happened; but if the general thinks that this miserable domestic muddle looks Napoleonic in the eyes of the world he will find himself sadly mistaken.

A Wretched American Duchess. The American wife of the Duke of Marlborough is finding out what it is to marry in haste and repent at leisure.

When this disappointed woman threw her self and her fortune into the arms of the Duke of Marlborough she knew that her husband bore the most dishonored name in Europe, and that the vilest jail-bird that ever came from the slums was his superior in morals. She did not marry the duke to reform him. She took him for better or worse simply because she wanted one of the oldest titles in England, and the duke was willing to give it to her in exchange for her hard cash. The duchess now has good cause to regret her bargain. The English papers say that when the bridal pair reached their historic home at Woodstock the rector refused to allow the church bells to be rung in their honor, and there was no public reception.

In addition to this slight the duchess was compelled to submit to something still more humiliating. A short time ago Lady Colin Campbell, whose name was once disgracefully connected with the duke's in the divorce suit brought against her by her husband, paid a visit to Blenheim castle. She rode out alone with the duke, and during the latter part of her stay did see the duchess. Fortunately, Marlborough's mother heard of what was going on and went to the eastle, accompanied by her daughter and her daughter's husband. Lady Colin, when she learned that these visitors were on their way, precipitately left the product of another man's brain. At the September dinner of the Philadelphia Clover club, the Times, of that city, states that the well-known actor, Eben Plympton, recited amidst great applause a poem entitled "Them Yankee Blankets." John B. McCormick, a New York guest, remarked to some of his friends that the poem was written by his friend, Sam W. Small, the "Old Si" of THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION. After McCormick had left the room, Plympton introduced Geoffrey Hanley, of Joe Jefferson's company, as the author. Hanley gracefully accepted the compliments showered upon him, and recited another poem which he also claimed as his own.

On one or two later occasions Hanley recited "Them Yankee Blankets," claiming it as his poem. In the meantime, McCormick, on his return to New York, was joked about his mistake in crediting the poem to Sam Small. He confronted Hanley, but the latter persisted in his claim. This stirred up McCormick, and he wrote to Small and received the following reply:

"With reference to the Hanley claim of th orship of 'Them Yankee Blankets,' it is delic absurd. I wrote the poem one night in THE AT ANTA CONSTITUTION editorial rooms, making the irst copy in shorthand, as I composed, and read it est to Joel Chandler Harris, 'Uncle Remus,' from ompleted it. It was then transcribed and printed in the issue of next morning, and at once had the in of the press of the country. I have a hundre more clippings of it from various leading jour he reports over the wires from the Memphis epemic. The facts above given can be substantiated beyond the possibility of dispute. As to Mr. Hanley, the Clover club and all other reputable bodies

Mr. Small's letter settles it. He has stated the facts of the case, and nothing but the facts. He is the author of the poem in question, and all the Hanleys in the world will never be able to make their claim stand in the face of the testimony. Mr. Hanley is in a bad fix As the lawyers say. he has been caught in the act.

THE situation in France is about to throw the Chicago and Boston editors into hysteries. The French ought to know of this The Sectional Spirit.

There is one sign of the times that has ome under our observation that is of great interest to the south. We allude to the stink the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette has raised at the north by advising the northern republicans that the southern problem-the southern situation, or whatever you are pleased to term it-should be approached in the spirit of wise and conservative statesmanship, and not in the spirit of partisanship. We quote one paragraph from an editorial article that recently appeared in the Commercial-Gazette:

We think with wisdom of administration ther ged be no more division of races on the demo and republican partisan lines than there is on the temperance question. We want to say to the southern white men that we do not sock the Africanizashould oppose the incursion of adventurers, with the countenance of the administration, to make use of black men for selfish purposes. There is one ing that has not been tried in its highest capacity for the healing of the nation. It is statesmans Let us try it."

These very reasonable remarks, and others like them, all tending to promote the unity and harmony of the union, which is a bigger affair than any and all parties, have thrown the republicans of the great west into a perfect fever of excitement.

To accommodate his enemies as well as his friends, Editor Halstead has thrown the columns open to the communications that have been pouring in upon him by the cart load. The great majority of those that we have read were in the shape of criticisms some of them severe.

The Commercial-Gazette is charged with eserting the republican platform; with making a sudden change of base and with making "a special plea" for the south. It is accused of having shown itself so igno rant of "the political murderers of the south" as to impute "henor" to them; and it is accused of ceasing to stand for a free ballot and a fair count.

All these things show beyond questio the seat-the site, the nidus, so to speakof sectional frenzy, hate and prejudice is in the republican party. The editor of the Commercial-Gazette suggests that it would be a wise and a gracious thing for the new administration, and he is immediately set upon in the most furious style, not only by his republican contemporaries but by his republican readers.

Take it altogether the episode is not a promising one. It shows that the south is still the object of republican hate. It is a distemper that time has failed to alleviate.

It is a long jump from Austin, Texas, to London, but the Whitechapel murderer seems to have taken it.

ST. PAUL'S EPISCOPAL church in Boston has called the Rev. Dr. R. A. Holland, of St. Louis. Dr. Holland was known during the war in Georgia as "the boy preacher." He then belonged to the Methodist church. He has frequently preached and lectured in Atlanta, and is one of the most eloquent

IN A RECENT address in New York, Sam Small, according to the Herald, said: "Two years ago the prohibitionists had the balance of power in fifty-eight congressional districts and in sever states, and had they been politic might now have nearly fifty eight congressmen and two or more governors favoring temperance legislation. Because they would not compromise they have none."

This brought W. T. Wardwell to the front: "This," he said, "was the sadd stafternoon he had passed since he became a prohibitionist. It grieved him that an orater and a worker like Mr. Small should have lost the courage of his convictions. For his own part he did not believe in compromises of any sort. The party should stand or fall upon its own merits. It should not disgrace itself like the old parties with deals. He believed in retaining the party intact until such time as it pleased God to lead it to victory."

The Rev. Stephen Merritt followed in the same yein. He had not lost his courage like Brother

Small, and please God he never would. That gen tleman would stand defeat better after he had got used to it, as older members of the party were. "I have passed the season of measles, mumps and scarlet fever," continued Mr. Merritt, "but Brother Small has not. We are all right. He may think we are in the soup, but we are not. This cause is born of God. I would have my hand cut off and my eyes torn out before I would vote anything but the traight prohibition ticket, and so I believe would all of you." Frem the New York Sun. The southern wing of the democratic party as plenty of time, in this hour of overwhe cat, to ponder anew and with greater seri ess the warning of the Sun addressed to southern ocrats when the question of renominating Pres dent Cleveland was up for discussion. We then eclared that the southern states had more at stake in the outcome of the election than any other aggregation of commonwealths in the union. The lone of southern newspapers, since the disastrous rout of the democracy, if such confirmation of our redictions had been necessary, has fully justified ur position. It is not too much to say that the sue precipitated by President Cleveland in his December message to congress was a southern pro-duct, as much so, indeed, as the Mills bill. It is now, as it has been in the past, the southern demo-erats who have insisted upon it that the doctrine of free trade was the supreme test of democratic orthodoxy. In forcing the issue upon the country at a time when it was of vital moment to the south that the national democratic party should triumph in state and federal elections party should triumph in state and federal elections, the southern democrats, especially those in congress, displayed a lack of political astuteness as extraordinary as it was inexplicable. The condition in the southern states is different from that in other sections of the union. To those the continued supremacy of the democratic party was of vasily greater moment. The race question supersedes all other questions there. It holds the whites together in solid planary. The success of the republicans n solid phalaux. The success of the equilileans will have the immediate result of placing all the couthern federal offices in the hands of the few renaining white republicans and their colored followers. The revival of a republican organization will follow, as a matter of course. With the federal aachinery thoroughly organized and the republicans in possession of the national government, there simminent danger that in 1892 the two southern lates of Virginia and West Virginia which along ates of Virginia and West Virginia, which cluu to their party with the greatest difficulty in the re-cent struggle, will be lost to the national democracy. It is, perhaps, retributive justice that the south, which precipitated and sustained more than any which precipitated and sustained more than any other section the issue upon which the national democracy split, should be the greatest sufferer from the results of defeat. And yet we cannot help but sympathize with the southern people in the prospect before them. Little comfort, indeed, is there in the statements industriously circulated that the policy of General Harrison's administration toward the south will be a broad and liberal one; the fact remains that the results of democratic defeat will be more seriously felt in the south than claswhere. Truly, the Hon, Roger Quarles Mills, the Hon, John G. Carlisie, the Hon, William Campbell Preston Breckenridge, and the Hon. Henry Watterson may reap what consolation they can from this outcome of their operations in free trade statesmanshp. If there is any balm in the free trade doctrine, they are in a supreme position to extract all ie, they are in a supreme position to extract all from the Boston Transcript, November 17.

The dark or blue blood in the human body s more "putrid" than the red blood so that Mr.
D'Reilly's simile is quite justified by the facts; but he meaning of "blue blood" in the sense of aristhe sales of anstocracy, comes from quite a different notion. After the black Moors were driven from Spain—or such of them as were too high spirited to become Christians on compulsion—the aristocracy of Spain was held to consist of those who traced their lineage back to to consist of those who traced their imeage back to the time before the Moorish conquest. The epople were whiter than those who had been mixed with Moorish blood; the veins upon their white hands were blue, while the blood of the masses, contaminated by the Moorish infusion, showed black upon nated by the Moorism infusion, snowed black upon their hands and faces. So the white Spaniards of old race came to declare that their blood was blue, while that of the common people was black. The phrase passed to France, where it had no such significant and was in fact only a mathism of the common people was black. nificance, and was, in fact, quite an arbitrary term, and got so on to England and America, where Mr. O'Reilly makes it turn to plague its local inven-

He Views It From Afar.—The great six-days' walking match is booming along in New York, but Georgia's "mountain wonder" is not there. All is viewing the battle from star—is with them in spirit if not in the flesh. Last night he formed a part of Walter Brown's audience in the fifth ward. He was attentive—nobody could have been more so. As he stood on the edge of the crowd, his ulster buttoned to his chin and his bright, blue eyes gazing full at the speaker, he presented a picture which would have delighted any orator's heart. He was the very embodiment of the interested listener which makes the speaker put forth his best efforts, and as Mr. Brown eaught that eye he was inspired to even ater efforts. But the "wonder" wasn't thinking of Walter Brown, Tom Glenn, local politics, Atlanta or anything of the sort. He is in Madison Square garden with his eye on the marquis of Queensbury waiting for the word which would start him on to waiting for the word which would start him on to fame and fortune. Around him are Littlewood, "Old Sport," Campana, Hughes, Hertz, Noremac and all the famous ones, The hands on the big clock point at twelve. The pendulum moves slowly to and fro—it seems an age between the heats. Will he ever give the word? Doesn't he know that he is simply delaying the hour of Alf Prater's success? But here laying the hour of Alf Prater's success? But here it is. Pull yourself together, old man, and don't forget the dear old mountains of your native Georgia. The marquis rises, and, in a cool, matter-of-fact voice, says: "Go! Georgia to the front!" How he does run! The old timers are nowhere. Run against a Georgia boy, will you? Just hear the applause! The crowd goes wild, and on all "Hurrah for Brown and Beutell !" It had waked him. It took him a minute to real-ize his surroundings, and then that look of interest was changed to one of absolute disgust as the mountain wonder buried his hands in his pockets and hurried off down the street.

DUBLIN, November 27.—The report that a second papal rescript had been sent to the Irish bishops a fortnight ago is now confirmed. It was intended that the receipt of the document should not be made known, but the bishops should proceed to enforce the commands contained in the first rescript without alluding to the existence of a second one. But this plan was spoiled through the indiscretion of a servant of the bishop of Linerick, who divulged part of the contents of the rescript. The main difficulty in the way of maintaining passenger rates is conceded by all passenger agents to be inability of the roads to find any substitute for the old pool. Receiver McNuita, of the Wabash railway, however, claims to have at fast discovered a solution of this perplexing problem which will secure for the roads all the advantages of the old pool. Railways, the general says, are not prohibited by law from making low rates for excursions, and he proposes that this principle be used to equalize the traffic of roads between competitive points. If: for instance, there were only two roads between Chicago and a given point, these roads might agree on the percentage of the through traffic to which each was entitled, and if one of the roads should run behind its percentage the chairman in charge of, the agreeentiled, and if one of the roads should run behind its percentage the chairman in charge of the agreement governing this business would authorize that road to quote reduced excursion rates until it had regained its share of the traffic. In the same manner the traffic of any number of roads could be managed and rates maintained without any open violation of law. General McNuita auggested this plan at a recent meeting of the managers, and at the coming meeting, to be held December 18th, it will be given further consideration.

The jury reconvened yesterday morning about half-past nine o'clock. Dr. G. B. Griffin, the physician who has been with Cohen all the while, was called before the jury in secret session. It is understood that he testified simply as to Cohen's condition. He stated in substance that Cohen might ultimately recover his reason, but this was just as liable to happen at one time as another. It might happen to morrow, or it might be months. It might never happen.

ing. For the past thirty-six hours the condition of his mind has been about the same. It can hardly be said that he has, even for a moment, been in full possession of his mind. He talks readily now, but with no coherence. He no longer tosses upon his bed, but lies quietly, and was able to sleep yesterday without being drugged.

"Samps," said one of his attendants yesterday. "let's go possum hunting." All right! All right!" he answered.

"All right! All right!" he answered.
"When do you want to go?"
"Go now," he answered, but without seeming to realize what he was saying.

He is undoubtedly able to recognize those that have been in the room with him, but a gentleman who was in the room for a considerable length of time says that Cohen cannot recall names, though he recognizes the face.
He calls frequently now for a cigarette or a cigar and seems to enjoy them. The wound in his head seems to be healing as rapidly as could be expected, and there are no discouraging evidences of internal inflammation. The doctors say simply that his case is hopeful, that he may recover his reason and he may not, and that his reason is as liable to return a year from now as to return tomorrow.

That's all there is to it.

Evidence Accumulating.

Evidence Accumulating. The case is rapidly assuming a form that will make it independent of Cohen's testi-will make it independent of Cohen's testimory.

This is a fact that peple have lost sight of in watching Cohen's condition. It must be remembered that Cohen went to sleep that night under the influence of morphine, and, even if he saw the man that hit him, he was dazed and stupefied. Then it is by no means certain that Cohen saw his assailant. It will be remembered that though the skull on the left side of Cohen's head was crushed in the skin was not broken. This argues that the quilts and blanket were drawn up over Cohen's head. It is another theory that Cohen awoke an instaut before the blow was struck and threw up his arm with the bedclothes on it. But a blow like that would have broken the hand or arm and after all leave the stick to come in contact with the bare head. The back of Cohen's felt hand was red and swollen. If this was caused by the stick it was caused by a was caused by the stick it was caused by a glancing blow, else the hand would have been broken, and this contact of the bare hand with the stick argues against the theory that the bed clothes were over that arm. Then again, the bless is given the stip of the bead the blow is upon the side of the he The assailant was standing at side of the bed. Cohen was ly upon his right side with his back turned upon his right side with his back turned to-wards the murderer. Naturally the blow fell upon the left side of the head and the padding of quitts and blankets kept the skin from being broken. It is easy to account for the hand being bruised. As Cohen lay tossing upon the bed, throwing his arms as he turned his bedy, the back of the hand strikes upon the railing of the bed. When Cohen was found and for some hours afters he tossed his arms in this way.

The only argument against the theory that

The only argument against the theory that Cohen's head was covered over with bed clothes, and that he cannot identify the murderer, is the fact that Cohen has an idea, however vague, that he has been, or is about to be, struck for the purpose of robbery.

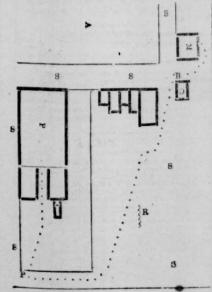

"Don't hit me! I'm your friend. I haven't got any!" He starts up suddenly from his sleep, and throws his hands up as if to ward off a blow.

"Don't! Don't hit me!"

Cohen has at times a faint reasoning power. He argues that if he scratches a match it will ignite, if he helds the light to his cigarette, draws his breath, as one does in smoking, that he can smoke. Many similar examples might be given. Cohen may have reasoned, in his own feeble fashion, that he was struck and struck by a robber, and remembers that Thomas had all the money.

But while the interest in Cohen's condition is none the less, an interest is manifest now in the auxide sheat vaccing faces.

is none the less, an interest is manifest now in the outside, absolute evidence. Scattered facts are coming to light, and facts already known are being compared and fitted together. Taking all the evidence together the following is the story in brief:

The wound in his head seems to be healing as rapidly as could be expected, and there are no discouraging evidences of internal inflammation. The doctys say simply that his case is hopeful, ng evidences of internal initialization. The doctors say simply that his case is hopeful, that he may recover his reason and he may not, and that his reason is as liable to return a year from now as to return tomorrow.

That's all there is to it.

Evidence Accumulating. The case is rapidly assuming a form that will make it independent of Cohen's testi-

will make it independent of Cohen's testimony.

This is a fact that peple have lost sight of in watching Cohen's condition. It must be remembered that Cohen went to sleep that night under the influence of morphine, and, even if he saw the man that hit him, he was dazed and stupefied. Then it is by no means certain that Cohen saw his assailant. It will be remembered that though the skull on the left side of Cohen's head was crushed in the skin was not broken. This argues that the quilts and blanket were drawn up over Cohen's head. It is another theory that Cohen awoke an instant before the blow was struck and threw up his arm with the bedclothes on it. But a blow like that would have broken the hand or arm and after all leave the stick to come in contact with the bare head. The back of Cohen's left hand was red and swoilen. If this was caused by the stick it was caused by a glancing blow, else the hand would have been broken, and this contact of the bare hand with the stick argues against the theory that the bed clothes were over that arm. Then again, the blow is upon the side of the head. The assailant was standing at the side of the bed. Cohen was lying upon his right side with his back turned towards the murderer. Naturally the blow fell upon the left side of the head and the padding upon his right side with his back turned to-wards the murderer. Naturally the blow fell upon the left side of the head and the padding of quilts and blankets kept the skin from being broken. It is easy to account for the hand being bruised. As Cohen lay tossing upon the bed, throwing his arms as he turned his body, the back of the hand strikes upon the railing of the bed. When Cohen was found and for some hours afters he tossed his arms in this

The only argument against the theory that The only argument against the theory that Cohen's head was covered over with bed clothes, and that he cannot identify the murderer, is the fact that Cohen has an idea, however vague, that he hasheen, or is about to be, struck for the purpose of robbery.
"Don't hit me! I'm your friend. I haven't got any!" He starts up suddenly from his sleep, and throws his hands up as if to ward off a blow.

off a blow.

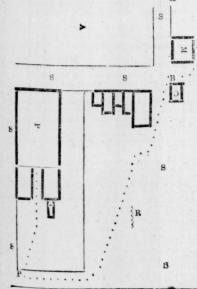

"Don't! Don't hitme!"

Cohen has at times a faint reasoning power.

He argues that if he scratches a match it will ignite, if he holds the light to his cigarette, draws his breath, as one does in smoking, that he can smoke. Many similar examples might be given. Cohen may have reasoned, in his own feeble fashion, that he was struck and struck by a robber, and remembers that Thomas had all the money.

But while the interest in Cohen's condition is none the less an interest is manifest now in

Is none the less, an interest is manifest now in the outside, absolute evidence. Scattered facts are coming to light, and facts already known are being compared and fitted together. Taking all the evidence together the following is the stery in brief:

P is the Pitts house, S S S streets, A the public square, C a small house tenanted by negroes, M store of McDonald, R a horse rack, H the point where pillow was found. There are stores all along from M to K. Heavy lines are buildings, light lines fences. The dotted line is the path taken by the murderer. The street in front of hotel runs north and south, hotel facing cast.

The fore part of the night—Tuesday night, November 20—was spent by Cohen, Thomas and Echols in playing cards in the livery stable. The stables are about northeast of the point B, and 200 yards away. It was lest a six-handed game and later a four-handed game, the other players being young men of Covington. The other man in the four-handed game was young Hamp McDonald. A few minutes before 3 o'clock the four young men left the stables, going south one square, and then west a square, or coming across obliquely behind the stores, to the point B. The corner store, M. belongs to A. E. McDonald, a brother of Hamp. Chas, S. Echols is, like Hamp McDonald, a clerk in this store, and both the young men sleep in the store.

He was answered in a tone so low that the woman could not make out the words. Occasionally a third voice would be heard. One of the men passed to and fro over the bridge and struck the bridge with a heavy stick as he walked. As he reached the part of bridge nearest the lamp post, he would strike the post with the stick he carried. The woman says they talked so violently, one of them particularly, that she was afraid they might get to shooting and that she was in danger. She did not see, but simply heard them.

After talking for a few minutes on the bridge, the men went together toward the hotel.

A few minutes after 3 o'clock three men en-

The negro that went up to make the fire saw the three men, Cohen, Thomas and Echols play three or four games; saw as much as $10 upon the table, saw Echols lose $1.75 and promise to pay $5 next day.

The negro heard Echols ask, "Who brought that stick up here?" Thomas answered, "I did" Now take Echols's own statement.

Now take Echols's own statement.
Thomas undressed and went to bed, and Cohen began undressing. Both invited Echols to remain with them all night, and Echols began undressing. After Cohen was undressed Echols assisted him to inject morphine into his (Cohen's) arm. Cohen then went to bed. After partially undressing, Echols remarked to Cohen:
"The obliged to go out doors, and it's so late I won't come back."

I won't come back."
Echols states further that he then stepped in Echols states further that he then stepped in the office to get a drink of water.

This was within five minutes of 5 o'clock—before or after.

A few minutes after 5 o'clock the negro woman living in the house C happened to be outdoors and saw a tall man, wearing light pants and dark frock tail coat, ceming across by the horse rack R directly toward B. She did not wish him to see her, so hid as he passed and watched him go around behind McDonald's store M. Echols states that after he left the office where he had gone for a drink of water he went directly to his home at least three-quarters of a mile away.

A negro man swears that early in the morn-A negro man swears that early in the morning he heard a lady at Mrs. Echols's residence scream and say:
"Oh, Charlie! Charlie! Charlie!"
The bloody pillow was found at the point just outside the fence. There is an opening n the plank fence at this point, three planks being off.

The path of the murderer is shown by the dotted line. It is fixed by the position of the pillow and by the path of the man in light pants and dark coat.

To quote from the verdict of the corner's jury "the circumstances point to Charles S. Echols as the person who inflicted the fatal blows."
It is known that Cohen and Thomas arrived together and registered at the Pitts house on Sunday, November 18th, and played cards Sunday night, Monday night, and Tuesday could not tell, though he passed within a few feet of her.

It was reported here that the negro boy "Shug" had been arrested. Nobody but Echols has been arrested.

The marshal at Covington said yesterday: "I have tried, and so have other people, to get evidence against the negroes, but there is none in the world. I have looked everywhere for another man that could possibly be in it, but I can't find none."

She Doesn't Know.

Mrs. Cohen, the mother of "Samps" Cohen, the one that is hurt, does not know of her son's danger. This is through the thoughtful care of her-other son. Editor S. B. Cohen, of Madison, who has been with his brother in Covington almost continuously since Wednesday moming.

"Methors sont me word" said Editor Cohen.

"Mother sent me word," said Editor Cohen, yesterday, "I had been in Covington long enough and that something was wrong about her mail-abe hadn't seen a Constitution in a week."

Cohen's condition leaves hopes for, his life and reason. He is doing as well as could be expected; no marked improvement, if any, within the thirty-six hours. There is no certainty as to his future mental condition—absolutely

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock Exchange. NEW YORK, November 27.—The stock market was a shade more active today and quite strong, especially in the afternoon, and prices this evening are in most steeks materially higher than those of last evening. There was a more confident tone to speculation this morning, and many operators who have held aloof from the market for some time were buyers today. While foreigners put out some stocks in the forenoon they were later buyers of their favorites, and throughout the day the principal sellers were traders. In the afternoon the upward ovement inaugurated was accelerated by reports from Chicago in regard to the new agreement Southwest and later by rumors of the comp settlement of the trunk line difficulties. England was again a marked feature in the list and became quite strong, though it was not until later that the general list joined in the movement. When it dld, however, Lake Shore was very prominent, but all the trunk line stocks as well as southwest erns, grangers and Nortbern Pacifics made market improvements. The extent of the rise encouraged the taking of profits toward the close and some reaction was had, though a portion of the loss was afterward recovered. The active list tonight is almost invariably higher, and New England is up 1½ per cent, St. Faul and Norfolk and Western preered 1% each, Lake Shore 14, Lackawanna, Erie, Missouri Pacific, Northern Pacific preferred and

THE CHICAGO MARKET. Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, November 27.—Operators were again arprised at the action of the wheat market today, which after a lower opening, became strong, and closed quite firm at higher prices. The opening was very unsettled, with sales from 14634c below yesterday's closing figure, but almost immediately rallied, selling up 11/2e from inside point, reacted 3/4c, and sold up 11/4c, reaching 2c above inside figires. From this point prices settled back ic, again rallied to outside figures, and the closing was 1½c higher than yesterday.

Corn again ruled casier, and a lower range of prices established. The feeling on the whole was considerably weaker, and the opening sales were ble under the closing prices of yesterday, after which the market was steady for a time, became easy and closed % 1/2 lower for December and 1/2 lower for November than yesterday.

Oats were quiet and steady. The feature of the trading was increased business in transferring contracts from December to May at 4e difference. Quite an active speculative trade was reported in mess pork, but the feeling was somewhat unsettled and weak. Offerings were liberal early, and the opening sales were made at 10@12c decline, which vas quickly followed by a further depreciation of 0@32½c. Later the market showed rather more teadiness, and prices rallied 7½@10c, and the marcet closed comparatively steady Trading wes moderately active in lard and the eeling was easier. Prices receded 12%@15c, but gain rallied 2%@5c and closed steady. A fair trade was reported in short rib sides. Prices ruled 15@17%c lower.

A LITTLE BOY DIES. Thought to Have Been Poisoned by Mixed

Pickles.

Samuel L. McBride, Jr., the only son of Mr. S. L. McBride, once a resident in Atlanta, and still well remembered here, died under circumstances that indicated poisoning by eating mixed pickles. On Saturday at dinner the little fellow, eight years old, indulged freely in the pickles, and later in the afternoon he grew weak and sick, gradually turning black in the face. He did not appear to suffer any pain, but the family became alarmed at his appearance and two physicians were sent for. They did all that could be done, working upon the idea that the child had been poisoned by the acid in the pickles, but at 8:30 Sunday morning the little boy died.

The deputy coroner summoned the two physicians to a consultation, but no definite conclusion was reached. he Chamber of Commerce Extend Him an Invitation and He Sends His Reply to President Oglesby.

M1. John H. Inman, president of the Terminal company, and Mr. Charles S. Smith, president of the New York chamber of commerce, will visit Atlanta on Friday next. The gentlemen will be accompanied by other distinguished New York capitalists.

The Atlanta chamber of commerce con-vened yesterday morning in response to the call issued by President Oglesby. There was a large attendance when the president announced the object of the meeting. President Oglesby said:

"I desire to call your attention to the fact that a party of prominent gentlemen, accompanying Mr, John H. Inman and Mr. Charles . Smith, president of the New York chamber of commerce, are now visiting the south, and are today being entertained by the city of Augusta, and would tomorrow accept the hospitality of Savannah. This meeting was called to consider extending an invitation to these gentleman to visit Atlanta.'

Dr. R. D. Spalding, who had prepared a resolution, arose, and asking that it be read, sent the paper to Mr. Welch, the secretary.

The paper read:

Resolved, That the chamber of commerce of the city of Atlanta, learning that distinguished gentlemen from New York, in company with Mr. John H. Imman, are now visiting this state, we hereby tender to the party a cordial invitation to extend their visit to Atlanta and the control of the co visit to Atlanta and give our people an opportunity of offering to them the hospitality of our city, and that the president be requested to telegraph the

The resolution was unanimously adopted, and President Oglesby was instructed to send a telegram to the Inman party.

A* resolution authorizing the president to appoint a committee upon reception and entertainment, a committee upon invitation and a committee upon finance was adopted, and the meeting adjourned.

meeting adjourned.

Soon after the adjournment President Oglesby sent the following telegram:

ATLANTA, Ga., November 27th, 1888.—Mr. John H. Imman, Charles S. Smith and Party, Augusta, Ga.: I am instructed by the Atlante channer of commerce at a meeting hely this day to extend a cordial invitation that you visit our city during your stay in Georgia. Your presence here will next with a hearty welcome, and your acceptance is respectfully solicited.

G. B. Adair, John B. Gramling, Paul Romare, J. H. Mecaslin.

The different committees will probably begin work today. So far nothing definite has been decided upon. It is understood, however, that the reception committee will meet the visitors at the union depot at decoduct them to the Kimball. There they will be entertained. During the sojourn of the party in the city they will be driven over the city.

Last night President Oglesby received an answer to his telegram. It reads:

Augusta, Ga., hovember 27.—Mr. J. G. Oglesby, President Atlanta Chamber of Commerce: We have the known to acknowledge the receit of your telegram inviting ourselves and friends to visit your city. We have great pleasure in behalf of ourselves and party in accepting your very kind invitation, and, as we spend Taursday visiting the Columbus exposition, will arrange to arrive in your city Friday morning next.

To the People of Atlanta Who Want to Celebrate Thanksgiving Day.

I will have 300 fine fat turkeys tomorrow morning They are all hand fed, and I had them killed on the European plan. I superintended the killing of these birds and will safely say these are the fluest I have ever seen. Some of these turkeys will weigh 25 pounds. If you leave me your orders for turkeys I will guarantse to save you 20 per cent, lower than any other grocery house in Atlanta. I have just received 10 barrels of the finest Cafe Code camberries, and 50 dozen colery, and I will safely say that I can save you 25 per cent, on your Thanksgiving digner. If I can save you two dollars, why it's saved, and it won't do you any harm to come to my store and see. If I can do what I say why you ought to do your trading with me; business is business, and that is the only way to look at it. I challenge contrettion, and defy any one to sell you better goed; than I do, and I know from observation that I have more goods it, my store to the square junch than any other grocery store has ta the square yard. I have no more to say now until December the first, and then I will make you all laugh. I am going to than any other grocery siere has to the square yard. I have no more to say now until December the first, and then I will ranke you all laugh. I am going to tell you all a little funny tale on a bashful groceryman, who said very confidentially that he never told a lie, and the very next day he sold 10 pounds of O. K. faid for one dollar to one of his customer, and when his clerks went to put up the lard he called his Boss's attention to the fact that the re was no O. K. land in the house; he made the hair stand on his head when he said, put up that other land, she won't know the difference. It's funny, but it's true.
